SCORES PAYNE TARIFF ACT

Congressman James Eloquently Appeals to Voters to Send Byrd to Congress.

The meeting Friday afternoon at the Courthouse was an enthusiastic one. The big Congressman from the First District held the attention of his audience till the end. The News report closed before the end of the speech. Congressman James further said in part:

"I am in favor of the election of Senators by the popular vote of the people and then we can weed out a lot of the men who are robbing the people."

"You know that Roosevelt recently went into an aeroplane and I believe the reason he did was to see just how high the Republicans had raised the tariff. The tariff on coffee was .35 cents now it is 55 cents and other cotton goods have been raised almost as much and some more. John Langley voted for these schedules. I voted against them for the interest of the people. I can go back to my people and ask them to send me back to Congress but I cannot see how Mr. Langley can."

Gus Wilson promised the people that he would not pardon the murderers of Gov. Goebel, but what did he do, pardoned Caleb Powers. It is one of the most scandalous things that will ever go down in history.

"This tariff has almost ruined the United States. Do you know why the Republican party uses the emblem of the old log cabin? It is because they have driven more people to live in log cabins than anything else. Did you know when you come to trusts and monopolies that the tariff is the mother of them? When a man in the mountains distills a little liquor the strong arm of the government reaches out and gets him or if some one steals a postal card."

"It is up to the people now. They want good roads, they are the ones primarily interested. If they allow the same old gang to run things as formerly, the roads will be in the same old condition."

Judge Evans and his friends have had a machine here for years. They have paid political debts with the roads; they have used the roads to influence elections. They do not want the money spent to the best advantage as it would be done by building pikes with modern machinery. They want the old hand system, breaking rock and spreading it.

"They cannot forgive the Construction Company for convicting them of doing business in violation of law. They resented at the time and they still resent the idea that we had the nerve to appeal to the courts to have road work done in the legal way."

"The County Judge and Road Supervisor have usurped the province of the Fiscal Court. They prepared specifications which no other Fiscal Court ever presented and made them as indefinite as possible in order that the Construction Company would be at their mercy if they got any of the contracts."

"But we believe the people are with us in our fight. We have equipped a modern plant. We are better prepared than any other company in Kentucky to build good roads and we believe the business men and the farmers of this city and county will insist that the roads be managed in a business like way and that they be no longer the tail of a political kite."

The following is the statement of the company:

Winchester, Ky., Oct. 28th, 1910. To the Clark County Fiscal Court.

Gentlemen:—In response to the invitation to attend your meeting Friday, the 28th inst., presumably to have us state more fully the reasons for our notification to the county that it has broken its contract with us and that we would not do any more work upon the pikes, we are of opinion that a verbal wrangle would be useless and that a deliberate statement in writing of our position would be more satisfactory to all parties.

We can say in a nut-shell that the controlling facts, which have been the source of all the trouble, are, in our opinion, the disappointment of the County Judge and Road Supervisor that we succeeded by a law suit in forcing the public letting of the roads, their further disappointment that we were given any contracts, and their consequent determination to either force us to abandon the contract, or to lose money on it, so that neither we, nor any other Construction Company, would ever dare bid another year, and thus the construction and repair of the roads would fall back into the realm of political robbery from which a wise law of the State has attempted to rescue them.

testing strongly against such tobacco, as most of them could not use it.

The lowest price of the season so far was paid Friday morning when some very inferior trash, that was good for little more than fertilizer was sold for two cents a pound.

Sales were held at the Lexington, Shelburne, Farmers and Growers houses, but at the sales were small.

At the Lexington house 10,220 pounds were sold at prices ranging from $6.50 to 17 cents; at the Shelburne about 6,000 pounds were sold at 5% to 16.5; cents at the Farmers house 5,000 pounds were sold at prices ranging from 4 to 15.75 and at the Growers house 9,500 pounds were sold, the prices on all except three baskets of an exceptionally bad crop, ranging from 6 to 16% cents.

The three baskets of very low grade trash were sold at 2, 2.9 and 2.8 cents.

There will be no sales on the loose leaf market here Saturday, it being customary to have no auctions on that day. The next sale will be held Monday.

GIVES REASONS FOR REFUSAL

Clark County Construction Company Files Statement With County Judge Evans.

The Clark County Construction Company filed Friday afternoon with Judge Evans its statement of the reasons for abandoning work on the county roads and why it considered that the county had violated the contract.

Mr. D. S. Gay, the president in speaking of their statement, said:

The following is the statement of the company:

Winchester, Ky., Oct. 28th, 1910. To the Clark County Fiscal Court.

Gentlemen:—In response to the invitation to attend your meeting Friday, the 28th inst., presumably to have us state more fully the reasons for our notification to the county that it has broken its contract with us and that we would not do any more work upon the pikes, we are of opinion that a verbal wrangle would be useless and that a deliberate statement in writing of our position would be more satisfactory to all parties.

We can say in a nut-shell that the controlling facts, which have been the source of all the trouble, are, in our opinion, the disappointment of the County Judge and Road Supervisor that we succeeded by a law suit in forcing the public letting of the roads, their further disappointment that we were given any contracts, and their consequent determination to either force us to abandon the contract, or to lose money on it, so that neither we, nor any other Construction Company, would ever dare bid another year, and thus the construction and repair of the roads would fall back into the realm of political robbery from which a wise law of the State has attempted to rescue them.

There has been considerable objection by the buyers to the wet tobacco that many of the farmers have been bringing onto the early market and public announcement was made of this Friday morning at the close of the sale at the Farmers' warehouse, when after the buyers had objected to some tobacco that had apparently been allowed to stand under a leak in the barn or else had been sprinkled in order to bring it into case. W. A. Leg, of the Farmers' warehouse, made a short talk advising the farmers against such practice and showing them wherein they hurt themselves by doing it, and explained that the buyers were pro-

We do not impute any bad faith to the individual members of the Fiscal Court, but do insist that this court has left this matter entirely in the hands of the County Judge and the Road Supervisor, and has not itself as a court taken an active part in this matter, and has not assumed the control of the whole business of building and keeping in repair all the county roads through a road committee, as is done in other counties in which the roads are kept in repair by taxation. You have seen fit to delegate all these duties to you, County Judge and Road Supervisor.

It would consume too much of your time to ask you to consider all the obstacles we have had to meet, or all the acts of injustice to which we have had to submit in our earnest endeavor to faithfully carry out our contract and give to this county the better roads to which it is entitled in this day of material advancement in all other avenues of comfort and convenience in living.

When this contract was awarded us we added an expensive hauling outfit, which was another manifest disappointment to your officials who knew that at the price we were doing the work we could not haul by wagons without losing money, other obstacles arose: the County Judge and Supervisor did their best to get prominent men to protest to this court that the use of this hauling machinery was injurious to the roads, but this was abandoned when nearly all who were approached stated that it was a benefit instead. It cannot be claimed that there was any impropriety in our using this heavy machinery for the contract required us to roll the pikes, and the weight of the roller is greater per square foot of surface than any of the other machinery.

The following are some of the matters of which we complain:

1. Before the contracts were let we asked that some approximate information be given us as to the places where the Supervisor would require the stone put, but he, in the presence of the County Judge, declined to set it out by sections in the advertisement, as is customary elsewhere, or to give us any verbal information on the subject.

As hauling is one of the large items of expense in furnishing stone it will be seen that this course was unjust to the bidders and detrimental to the interest of the county in securing bids, as they had to be made in the dark.

2. As soon as the contract was let, and after the time for advertising had passed so that another bidder could not be had, the Supervisor announced that we would not be permitted to fill our contract by furnishing stone from our quarry. He knew that we were expecting to use this quarry and yet he never objected while our bid was being considered, nor when it was accepted and the contract was made. This action held us up until the court could be called together to consider the question. We appealed to the Fiscal Court and this court showed its fairness and justness in setting aside the objections of these officials and in directing that our stone be accepted, under our contract.

7. Upon the Wades Mill pike it became very material to us to know approximately where the stone was to be placed as we expected to use a portable crusher and haul the rock with teams. We accordingly in writing asked the Supervisor and the County Judge to indicate approximately what quantities would be needed on the various portions of that pike, which for convenience we divided into four specified sections. This both of them refused to do. Mr. Haggard says in the public press that he went over the road and told Mr. Hodgkin where this rock was to be placed and that he agreed to come again when our crusher was set; but that is just what we feared, that he would then require it hauled to the furthest point from the crusher. If he wanted to give us this information, why should he object to giving us the approximate requirements in writing and before we located our crusher, for his verbal suggestions were too indefinite to be of service and besides they were subject to change at any time. His unexplained failure to give us this information showed conclusively that his only purpose in withholding this information was to require us to haul the bulk of the material the greatest possible distance as he had done on all other roads repaired by us.

Under a fair and reasonable interpretation of our contract we were entitled to this information and could not in justice to ourselves go on without it, hence, after heretofore enduring everything in order to carry out the contract, we gave notice that for this and other breaches by the county we would go no further with it.

It is claimed by the officials that we are only quitting because we cannot comply with the contract by December 1st, the date fixed. Our contract calls for about ten thousand dollars ($10,000) worth of material. We have furnished over six thousand ($6,000) of this, including the extras, and for the obstacles and obstructions which we have met at the hands of your officials we could easily have finished all the work within the time fixed.

The court, however, was mistakenly advised that they had no power to correct, though a majority thought it should be corrected, and hence we were, after another considerable delay, forced to bring suit to construe the contract, and if held to be ambiguous, to correct it by making it clear that we were to be paid for the screenings. In the suit which was filed the four magistrates above named had testified under oath that they understood and intended the contract to mean that we should be paid for the screenings. The suit has not been decided and they are still holding our money.

4. We resumed work without waiting for the decision of the court, but were again met with what we considered an unjust and arbitrary action under the contract, namely, we were required on the Lexington pike, the first of the main pikes, to haul seventy per cent of the material to the two miles on the far end near the Fayette county line with only a few rock scattered over the rest of the pike. So on the Iron Works pike we were not allowed to furnish any stone closer than two and a half miles of Winchester, while the far end of this pike, where there was plenty of stone and we purposed putting our portable crusher, they took away from us entirely.

The letter was signed by "Militant Brussels anarchist," and read:

"Since no one has had the courage to blow up the German autoocrat I have decided to throw the bomb."

Efforts of the authorities to arrest the writer were fruitless.

All windows of the house overlooking the streets through which the royal party passed from the palace to the railway station were ordered closed temporarily and the station itself was packed with troops. The railway line for a considerable distance out of the city was guarded.

5. When we purchased the hauling outfit, which was another manifest disappointment to your officials who knew that at the price we were doing the work we could not haul by wagons without losing money, other obstacles arose: the County Judge and Supervisor did their best to get prominent men to protest to this court that the use of this hauling machinery was injurious to the roads, but this was abandoned when nearly all who were approached stated that it was a benefit instead. It cannot be claimed that there was any impropriety in our using this heavy machinery for the contract required us to roll the pikes, and the weight of the roller is greater per square foot of surface than any of the other machinery.

6. The county then delayed time and again in fixing the bridges so that we could haul over them.

The numerous delays which have been caused by your officials have been and are extremely costly to us as we were compelled to pay our men and hold them in readiness to do the work of the county which we had undertaken. The many ways in which we have been mistreated and impeded seem small when viewed singly, but when taken collectively are extremely important to us and vital to our contracts.

7. Upon the Wades Mill pike it became very material to us to know approximately where the stone was to be placed as we expected to use a portable crusher and haul the rock with teams. We accordingly in writing asked the Supervisor and the County Judge to indicate approximately what quantities would be needed on the various portions of that pike, which for convenience we divided into four specified sections. This both of them refused to do. Mr. Haggard says in the public press that he went over the road and told Mr. Hodgkin where this rock was to be placed and that he agreed to come again when our crusher was set; but that is just what we feared, that he would then require it hauled to the furthest point from the crusher. If he wanted to give us this information, why should he object to giving us the approximate requirements in writing and before we located our crusher, for his verbal suggestions were too indefinite to be of service and besides they were subject to change at any time. His unexplained failure to give us this information showed conclusively that his only purpose in withholding this information was to require us to haul the bulk of the material the greatest possible distance as he had done on all other roads repaired by us.

The suit was filed by the Attorney General early in 1907 following a message of Governor Deeney to the Legislature in which it was asserted the railroad had so manipulated its account as to credit the millions of its earnings to lines not chartered in Illinois and hence not subject to the 7 per cent tax appropriation made by the legislature to defray the expenses of the accounting.

This accounting swells the amount which the Governor has estimated to be due the State from five million to fifteen million dollars.

When the State filed its bill in the La Salle county Circuit Court three years ago, the railroad entered a demurrer and also demurred to append bill filed by the State.

The Circuit Court sustained the demurrer, issuing a decree dismissing the complaint from this decree. The state appealed and Friday's decision indicates that a Supreme Court finds the complaint sufficiently tenable on its face to warrant a trial on its merits.

The remains of Dr. W. Miller were laid to rest in the Winchester cemetery Saturday morning. The remains were taken from the Brown-Proctor Hotel at 10 o'clock to the cemetery followed by a large number of his friends. The services were conducted at the grave by Dr. J. L. Weber, of Jackson, Tenn., and the Elks Lodge of which he was a member. Following were the pall-bearers: Active—W. H. Garner, T. C. Robinson, J. W. Poynter, A. R. Spahr, J. D. Simpson and O. S. Johnson.

Honorary—Dr. Geo. Graves, B. F. Johnson, B. F. Curtis, Marcus Bean, A. Hood Hampton, J. W. Chambers and Elder J. W. Harding.

to say whether they will have their roads, for which such a large part of their taxes are devoted, cared for according to the old and illegal method, or according to the new, which the other up-to-date counties of the State are now enjoying.

ROYAL PAIR

ARE THREATENED

Anarchist Says He Will Throw Bomb to Kill Emperor William and the Empress.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 29.—Extraordinary precautions were taken Thursday night to protect Emperor William and Empress Auguste Victoria when they left this city for Berlin because of a letter threatening His Majesty which was received at the royal palace.

The letter was signed by "Militant Brussels anarchist," and read:

"Since no one has had the courage to blow up the German autoocrat I have decided to throw the bomb."

Efforts of the authorities to arrest the writer were fruitless.

All windows of the house overlooking the streets through which the royal party passed from the palace to the railway station were ordered closed temporarily and the station itself was packed with troops. The railway line for a considerable distance out of the city was guarded.

To add to this confusion it is said that Kentucky did little better than her mother State of Virginia in the first years of her history. As a result additional "blanket" grants made by the State are now challenged.

In all, about two million five hundred thousand acres of land are said to lie under the doubtful title of these "blanket" grants. Of this amount, the Eastern Kentucky coal land corporation of which C. B. Hillhouse, is credited with being the chief stock owner, claims title to half a million acres. On the other hand three thousand citizens of the State of Kentucky have entered these lands.

Claimants under "blanket" grants call them "squatters." Attorney General Breathitt of Kentucky has appeared in the Supreme Court to assert in defense of their claim to the title that they are people who built up the State and erected the Commonwealth with its courthouse and school houses, its municipalities and internal improvements.

The effect of the decision is to send the case back to the Circuit Court of La Salle county for a hearing on its merits. It is the contention of Governor Deeney that for 33 years the railroad has been "milking" the State through its system of accounting for gross earnings on which it is required under its charter to pay 7 per cent to the State in lieu of other taxes.

The suit was filed by the Attorney General early in 1907 following a message of Governor Deeney to the Legislature in which it was asserted the railroad had so manipulated its account as to credit the millions of its earnings to lines not chartered in Illinois and hence not subject to the 7 per cent tax appropriation made by the legislature to defray the expenses of the accounting.

This accounting swells the amount which the Governor has estimated to be due the State from five million to fifteen million dollars.

TITLES FOR NOVELS.

The fact that the title selected for one of the season's new novels is "Let the Roof Fall Down" has already attracted considerable attention, which is perhaps exactly what the author, or her publishers, intended it to do. The combination of words certainly arouses curiosity. It also foreshadows, according to the law of imitation in book titles familiar to all whose business lies with literature, the likelihood of numerous variants, of which "Let Us Raise the Roof," would be the most obvious. We have just passed through a period of titles of novels beginning with "When," started by Mr. Charles Major's "When Knighthood Was in Flower," and through the still more recent "Call of" style of title, introduced, if we remember aright, in Mr. Jack London's "Call of the Wild." A decade or so ago Mrs. Deland's "John Ward, Preacher," somewhat of a novelty in the way of titles, brought down an avalanche of similar inventions, among them "Metzger," "Shoemaker."

The range of the novelist's inventiveness in the matter of good titles is amazingly narrow, and is almost reducible to a very few overworked rules, which such brilliant exceptions as "The Scarlet Letter" and "Vanity Fair" only serve to prove. First and foremost, in length of service and literary importance owing to the masterpieces to which it is attached, is the descriptive title, of which "The Bride of Lammermoor" and "The Heart of Midlothian" are perfect examples. This form of title has been and continues to be at one time or another the refuge and refuge of all novelists. "The Pilgrims of the Rhine," "The Adventures of Philip," "A Tale of Two Cities," "Diana of the Crossways," "The Return of the Native," "The Marriage of William Ashe," "The Prisoner of Zenda," and "The Intrusions of Peggy," which, of course, leads direct to "The Misdeemors of Nancy."

They are good, trustworthy titles, but they are not felicitous inventions. Authors, even the best of them, have only occasional moments of inspiration in the naming of their books. Meredith had such a moment when he found "The Tragic Comedians." Wil-kie Collins succeeded in the case of "The Woman in White," and Charles Reade had a rare knack of choosing titles that awakened interest. Henry James, too, has often succeeded singularly well in inventing titles that suit his subject and his treatment of it to perfection.

Another rule for the naming of a novel is to form its title out of the kernel of an appropriate quotation and here Mr. Howells stands first.
He has gone repeatedly to Shakespeare in naming his books, and, of course, never in vain: "A Foregone Conclusion," "A Hazard of New Fortunes," "A Counterfeit Presentment," "A Modern Instance"—these are titles of merit. But Mr. Howells has also a fine gift of originality in choosing titles, as witness the appropriateness of "Indian Summer" and "April Hopes," while the far more recent "London Films," of the essence of the book it names, proves that the gift has not forsaken him.

have conclusively demonstrated is not effective in the treatment of colds or grippe.

It is a positive fact that a dose of Papa's Cold Compound, taken every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken, will end the Grippe and break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach, limbs or any part of the body.

It promptly relieves the most miser-

Weak Over-worked Women

Who are broken down and made invalids by the drudgery of never ending household cares and duties, or by over-frequent bearing and nursing of children, and many other cares, burdens and strains which the weaker sex have to bear, are deserving of profound sympathy. But while sympathy is commendable what these unfortunate women most need is a good, honest, square-deal Restorative Tonic and Strength-giving Nervine and Regulator—one compounded and carefully adapted to act in harmony with woman's peculiar, delicate, ever-sickly organization.

Who so well fitted to select, carefully proportion the ingredients and compound a remedy for the cure of these distressing and often pain-wracking weaknesses and derangements, as the carefully and thoroughly educated and regularly graduated physician who has had a long and successful experience in treating just this class of cases.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

THIS MEDICINE IS

THE ONE REMEDY Now, and for over 40 years, sold by druggists for Woman's Peculiar Weaknesses, and Distressing Ailments, gotten up by one having all of the above qualifications.

THE ONE REMEDY which absolutely contains neither alcohol (which to most Women is rank poison) nor injurious or habit-forming drugs.

THE ONE REMEDY which is so perfect in its composition and so good in its curative effects as to warrant its makers in printing its every ingredient, as they do, on its outside wrapper, verifying the same under solemn oath.

In all the above most important particulars, the "Favorite Prescription" stands absolutely alone—in a class all by itself—as woman's most reliable and trust-worthy remedy in time of sickness and distress. It is a pure glycerin extract made from American curative roots, found by long time experience most valuable in curing woman's weaknesses and derangements. The leaders in all schools of medical practice have endorsed each of its ingredients as of the best known remedies for the complicated affections for which it is recommended. These professional endorsements should count for far more than any number of lay testimonials. A booklet full of them sent free on receipt of name and address.

AUDITORIUM.

One of the funniest acts that has appeared at the Auditorium theatre in some time is Lew Wood, the ventriloquist, who announced a large audience Friday night. With Tommy and George, the boys who smoke, talks and sings. Come this is undoubtably the best act seen here in a long time. Currie and Earl, piano-logue and comedy entertainers, are presenting an excellent act mixed with plenty of good music, songs and some good baseball dope. With two good pictures the show is above the standard.

Ladies, don't fail to attend the  SOCIETY Hildreth-McKinney.

Lawrence Hildreth and Miss Cora Cornelius McKinney were married this week at Macedonia Christian church, Fayette county, Elder E. W. Delcamp, officiating. Mrs. John McKinney and Miss Elizabeth Graves were the bride's attendants, while Walter Hildreth, brother of the groom was best man. The groom has charge of a large grain and coal business at Avon. The bride is the lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. McKinney, formerly of this county, and has many friends here whom we join in congratulations.

Handsome Son.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Stewart are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a handsome son at their home, 605 West Maple street, Tuesday morning.

The above is from the Enid Morning News, Enid, Oklahoma, and will be interesting to Winchester people. Mr. Stewart was formerly manager of the Kentucky Evening Gazette and The Lexington Herald, leaving Lexington to go to Enid, where he bought the Enid Morning News, a paper which he now controls.

Mrs. Stewart was formerly Miss Margaret O'Brien. She was connected with the Kentucky Evening Gazette when Mr. Stewart was manager. They were married soon after the purchase of the News, over a year ago, and went to Enid to live.

Mrs. Stewart formerly lived here, where she is much loved and admired.

Mrs. William Warren and daughter, Miss Letitia, of Danville, are guests of her daughter, Mrs. Lucien Beckner.

Mrs. W. A. Beatty has returned from a visit to her sister, Mrs. John Fr. Roche, in Louisville.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Munson and Mrs. VanWarts, of Cynthiana, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Endicott.

Mr. H. H. Phillips was in Louisville on business Thursday.

Mrs. Robert Ogden is suffering from a severely sprained ankle.

Mr. L. H. Bush has arrived from New York.

Miss Glorianna Elkin will entertain with "Harlowe'en" party.

Dr. W. Carl Grant and family have taken apartments with Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Scrivener.

Miss Sue Scrivener is visiting in Richmond.

Miss Allie Heusley has accepted a position with the Scrivener store and would be pleased to see her friends.

Mrs. Otis Flynn attended the funeral of Miss Annie Gaudinger at Cynthiana.

Mr. Byrd and his managers were much chagrined over the demonstration in favor of Langley, and Mr. Byrd's speech was not up to the standard that his friends expected.

He confined himself almost entirely to a discussion of the tariff, and his anti-protection views did not take much with many of his own party. He omitted several of the statements he had made at other points regarding Langley, but the latter had stenographic reports of Mr. Byrd's previous utterances, and took them up one by one literally tearing them to pieces, producing documentary evidence that contradicted Mr. Byrd in nearly a dozen instances. He demanded that Mr. Byrd go back to the places where he had made these statements and apologize to the people for his misrepresentations.

Mr. Langley was born and reared in this country, is deservedly popular and has a very strong following among Democrats. Almost every friend and relative he has in the county were present Tuesday, and it

A Ring at The Doorbell

By LOUISE IDA ROSS

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Trevor were sitting one October evening before a blazing wood fire—they had not yet lighted the furnace—and the room was aglow and redolent with the pleasant odor of burning wood. The children had been romping. Mr. Trevor, carrying Bennie piggyback and Willie on all fours, but their mother had now taken them all, including the girls, up to bed, tucked them in, kissed them good night and had returned with her sewing, which she was doing by the big lamp on the table, while Mr. Trevor read a magazine.

There was a ring at the bell.

Now, for many years there was something in the ring of his doorbell that cast a sober look over Samuel Trevor's face. But to explain the reason for this it is necessary to go back to the time when he was a very young man.

When he was but eighteen his father, who was a lumber merchant, sent his son to a lumber camp that he might learn the business which would one day be his, from the beginning.

There is danger to all persons of that age of inexperience and recklessness that they may make a misalliance, and on that account it is a bad plan to take them away from young girls of their own social circle and place them among their inferiors. And where would a young man of refinement find people more his inferiors than in a lumber camp? Among the girls there was Madge Hopkins, the daughter of a lumberman, several years older than Trevor, who lured him into indiscretions with her, then threatened him with vengeance if he refused to marry her. He did so, but immediately left the camp.

An effort was made to annul the marriage, but it was unsuccessful.

Then the woman offered to refrain from troubling her husband if his father would support her. Remittances were sent regularly for a season, when suddenly a newspaper was received containing a notice of her death.

No doubt was felt of the truth of the notice when several years had passed and no remittances having been sent, no demand was made for them.

Twelve years after the conclusion of this episode Samuel Trevor married Agatha Beach. He told her all about it before being engaged to her, not expressing a doubt that his first wife was dead. "You may be sure of that," said Agatha, "or she would be drawing the lifeblood out of you." Nevertheless Trevor, having had nothing but the death notice to prove to him Madge Hopkins' demise, never felt absolutely sure. And that was the reason why a certain dread was connected with the ringing of his doorbell.

KENTUCKY BOTTLERS' ASSOCIATION.

STATE BOTTLERS' ASSOCIATION

Organization is Founded By Mr. G.
Lee Wainscott, Who is Elected
Secretary and Treasurer.

The Kentucky Bottlers' Association was formed in this city last summer by Mr. G. Lee Wainscott, manufacturer and bottler of Roxa Kola.

The Association has about fifty members now which goes to show how much time and work Mr. Wainscott expended in only about two months to complete the organization.

At the first meeting held in Louisville during the State fair Mr. G. Lee Wainscott was elected secretary and treasurer and was sent as a delegate to the National Convention held in Philadelphia three weeks ago.

This was the first National Convention ever held in which Kentucky had a representative.

A better representative could not have been selected than Mr. Wainscott, as the first day of the convention he made a speech on the floor that not only made himself famous as a bottler but one that brought Kentucky before the convention all during the meeting. Kentucky's representative was appointed on a number of important committees and by virtue of being a member of the executive committee he becomes a director of the largest bottlers' magazine published in the world.

This was the first National Convention ever held in which Kentucky

had a representative.

A better representative could not have been selected than Mr. Wainscott, as the first day of the convention he made a speech on the floor that not only made himself famous as a bottler but one that brought Kentucky before the convention all during the meeting. Kentucky's representative was appointed on a number of important committees and by virtue of being a member of the executive committee he becomes a director of the largest bottlers' magazine published in the world.

At the first meeting held in Louisville during the State fair Mr. G. Lee Wainscott was elected secretary and treasurer and was sent as a delegate to the National Convention held in Philadelphia three weeks ago.
